MATERBEAMPATER

A collection of short stories by Honey Adewole

About Book

You'd want to have a copy of MATERBEAMPATER in your library, classroom or bookstore because;

MATERBEAMPATER is a "no nonsense is a nonsense" book.

With Poetry and Pictures to enhance reading for pleasure.

And light-hearted fables, because morals stick better if they are fun to read about.

EXCERPTS FROM THE BOOK

EDWARD BANG

There he goes Edward Bang!
With mash for head and sausages for hair
He wasn't one to worry about a thing
Except he never found a hat fit to wear

And when the sun was hot
His sausage hair fried and went off with a bang
Just for the half split to hang
And when it rained
His mashy head washed and went with a dang
And a face of frost sprang ...

WILLY SODDEN

Willy Sodden, what a lad!
A mighty fiddly secret he had
His fingers got stuck in a zipper twiddle
Now what a fiddle!
His cushy bottom had an even jiggle

How? What a riddle!
And when mama came knocking at dawn
Nature had made a cloud of his yawn

POPPY BROWN

Grumpy, Frumpy Poppy Brown
Had a face with a scary frown
And every time she walked down town
She looked loke a blown-up doll in her outgrown gown
And as she sang when she went up town
The flying birds fell all the way down

Once she went to Sweeties town
And knocked the coloured sweet's rack down
In a heap she got buried to drown
To be lost forever like a silly clown
